

Essay on Mahatma Gandhi 200 Words

Mahatma Gandhi was born on October 2, 1869, in Porbandar, India. All throughout his life, he was guided by nonviolent beliefs. Bapu struggled greatly and gave up a lot of his personal possessions in his journey to free India from British rule, but he never wavered from his nonviolent beliefs.

His legal career took him to South Africa, where he fought against racial injustice. He married Kasturba at the age of thirteen and continued his schooling in London. Gandhi used nonviolence in various movements during India's war for independence, including the Champaran and Kheda movements, the Non-cooperation Movement, the Salt March, and the Quit India Movement. His influence was felt all around the world, motivating figures like Nelson Mandela and Martin Luther King Jr.

Gandhi made contributions to secularism, environmental sustainability and social transformation. His legacy is firmly based on his nonviolence (Ahimsa) ideology. On January 30, 1948, he was murdered, yet his influence lives on, earning him the title of renowned "Father of the Nation and Bapu" in India's history. His legacy will live on forever, inspiring future generations with his words and example.
